Tito —

As we discussed, I suggest that we communicate the following to town officials and members of the community, both in EPA's public information bulletins and in any personal communications with town officials or local residents:

"The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) will undertake additional assessment activities at the site after the completion of the EPA removal action. These assessment activities will include the collection and analysis of groundwater samples from on-site monitoring wells, in order to better characterize the extent of remaining contamination and identify any potential impacts to public health and the environment that may exist at the site."

Let me know if this looks appropriate to you — I'm not committed to the specific wording, but just want to get something fairly generic out there so the community knows we're not going to just close the gate and forget about the place.
